Hunting The Wolf: Paranormal Werewolf Romance (Wolfsbane Book 3) Angelina Miller

Blair Antonio is a nineteen year old young woman, nearly twenty dealing with the grief of losing her only sister, not to mention her own impending death. Death seems to be all around her, haunting her with the things she can't change. She doesn't know how to let go of the past, but worse, she's convinced that things are not as they seem in the present. Though her boyfriend thinks she's crazy and the police have ruled out the possibility of foul play, Blair is convinced that her sister's death was not an accident. She begins to follow a strange, winding trail that leads her to an unexpected place that may hold the answers to the questions she keeps finding, but it definitely holds danger.

When Blair finds a dark, mysterious man, she may be in more danger than she realizes. He's beautiful and lures her in with his dark eyes and wolfish grin, but can she trust him? And can she stay away from him? He's linked somehow to her sister's death—ruled nothing more than a rabid dog attack—but how? When more attacks just like Blair's sister's start cropping up, Blair is positive that she's right. Blair is convinced now that this isn't just some rabid dog attack. It can't be just a coincidence. Except that she isn't all that sure she can believe herself. What if she really is crazy?

The night that Blair begins to follow the truth of her sister's death, another attack hits. This time, it is even closer to home. Blair finds herself struggling to understand and deal with a new, inexplicable change that is surging through her. It is terrifying and she isn't sure that she can handle it, but she has to try. Is this what happened to her big sister?
