Josh Baker and Eddie Debord are two young boys who love nothing more than running the hills and riverbanks of their small hometown in West Virginia. Adventure is something they are always seeking and one day they find it! Inside an old red milk can that they discover by the river, is a relic from the past. A document that will send them on an adventure of a lifetime! They will make new friends and new enemies and will find themselves drifting downriver, biking down old railroad beds, exploring hidden hollows and finding hidden secrets, all in search of a long lost jewel from the past; a pile of Confederate gold that went missing in 1903 after a train robbery and could lay quite literally, right in their back yard. They will cross paths with many curious characters who all want a piece of the action while trying to connect the dots to this age old mystery. Suspense, danger, and terror are around every turn and they must be careful! Because in the end, it could cost them much more than just a couple weeks of their summer vacation. Be careful wishing for big adventures....one may find you!
