Parent Power: How to Raise a Reading Superstar is for parents, guardians, tutors, church and community workers – any adult who wants to help children or teens increase their ability to read and write – and do it while having outrageous fun! Using this book, readers will learn: • The first and most important way that children learn; • The fastest way to increase reading ability; • How to close the multi-million word gap with wealthy children; • How to nurture improvement in just minutes a day; • How children/teens can give them the secrets to motivating them to read; • The tricks medical students use to boost comprehension; • Fun games, activities, and exercises that stimulate learning and retention; • How to build a child's home library for free or very little money. Regardless of age, grade level, or background, whether a child is diagnosed with a learning disability, emotional disability, is taking medication, hasn't warmed up to books or is hostile to them, Parent Power provides keys to a reading revolution. Research shows that children who are intrinsically motivated to read – that is, children who are shown the power and joy of reading for enjoyment's sake – have a greater chance of becoming lifelong and capable readers.
